

Halifax man indicted in fatal stabbing by grand jury

Search for missing Duxbury girl led police to house

NEWS update

A Plymouth County grand jury has returned a murder indictment against Soi Ket Dang, 32, of Halifax for the November 16, 2015 murder of Marissa Randall, 20, of Revere, Plymouth County District Attorney Timothy J. Cruz announced last week.

On Tuesday, November 17, 2015 at approximately 1:13 p.m., officers from the Halifax Police Department arrived at 46A Wamsutta Avenue in Halifax to inquire about a missing 16- year-old girl from Duxbury after Duxbury police put a trace on her cell phone to try to find her. Officers found the girl at the Halifax home with the defendant, Soi Ket Dang. Once back at the Duxbury police station, the girl told police that the defendant had killed someone the night before, had the body in a closet and that she had seen blood inside the home.

The Halifax police responded to Wamsutta Avenue again and observed the blood inside the home. A subsequent search warrant led police to the discovery of Randall's body and the possible murder weapon, a hunting knife.

The victim had multiple stab wounds on her body and the medical examiner's office determined the wounds caused her death. Investigators said that the victim and defendant, as well as the Duxbury teen, had met on the website "Meetme." The defendant is currently held without bail and will be arraigned in the Brockton Superior Court at a later date. No charges were filed against the Duxbury teen.
